

Need help with finding content for your online course work?

The Montana AHEC Scholars Program, which began in 2018, has developed an online “Library of Learning” that has many free trainings, webinars, TED Talks, and podcasts that are organized by six core topic areas that are vital in training our future health professionals: Practice Transformation, Interprofessional Education, Cultural Competency, Social Determinants of Health, Integrated Behavioral Health, and Current and Emerging Health Issues. We are continually adding to these trainings.

For some background: AHEC Scholars is a national certificate program developed by the U.S. Health Resources & Services Administration and state AHECs (National AHEC Organization). It is a program for health professions students interested in enhancing their skills in interprofessional practice in rural or underserved settings.

The Montana AHEC Scholars Program has been nationally recognized for the diversity in health profession programs participating and its exceptionally high student enrollment. Currently, we have 194 AHEC Scholars across Montana and 10 different health programs represented. Our success reflects the commitment to interprofessional education and collaborative practice demonstrated by faculty and leadership within the Montana University System.

With the COVID-19 pandemic and the demand for all coursework to be taught online, we want to offer our Library of Learning trainings to faculty to incorporate into your classes. If you choose to utilize content from the Montana AHEC Scholars Library of Learning, we ask that you share information about our program with your students in return. We encourage you to direct your students to our AHEC Scholars website to learn more about the program and share our logo in your online coursework.

If you are interested in having access to this Library, please contact Mandy Hedstrom at amanda.hedstrom@montana.edu so she can enroll you in the online platform.

Montana AHEC is committed to our academic partnerships across the state and hope that our Library of Learning can be useful during this time of transition. Please reach out to us if you have any questions about the program.
