

Pathway of a Messenger

Messengers for Health partnered with the Montana Office of Rural Health/Area Health Education Center (AHEC) to develop a training for Community Health Workers (CHWs) in Indigenous communities called Pathway of a Messenger.

Messengers are CHWs who are Apsáalooke Tribal members that have established trust and respect within their communities.

The curricula of the programs are complementary and supportive. Using the strengths of the Apsáalooke culture, the organizations worked together to create a new, culturally competent, blended training.
